WILSON WILL WAIT FOR OVERT ACTS

Nothing Beyond Severing of Diplomatic Relations Unless Germany Destroys American Ships and Lives—In That Event He Will Come Again to Congress.

Ambassador Gerard has been recalled from Berlin.

Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador to the United States, was handed his passports at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

President Wilson announced this morning that he would address Congress at 2 o'clock.

In his address President Wilson said that only actual overt acts will make him believe that Germany will sacrifice American ships and lives. He said he would come again to Congress if American ships and lives are sacrificed.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, Feb. 3.—With diplomatic relations with Germany already severed, President Wilson this afternoon assured the congress of the United States in a joint session, with the supreme court present, that he did not believe Germany deliberately will sacrifice American lives in the wilful prosecution of her ruthless naval program.

"Only actual overt acts on their part can make me believe it even now," he declared in a voice quivering with emotion.

But if such action comes the president again will come before congress. And it was made plain that if he were forced to do so he would demand reprisals.

The grave question of peace or war between the United States and Germany then reposes in the German Great War Headquarters and the German Admiralty. If American lives are sacrificed in the new submarine operations, the nation has the assurance of its chief executive that he will demand from congress "authority to use any means that may be necessary for the protection of our seamen and our people in the prosecution of their peaceful and legitimate errands on the high seas."

The president said that he "can do nothing less." And he declared that he "took it for granted that all neutral governments will take the same course."

Just at the very moment that the president began his address to the congress his passports were handed to Ambassador von Bernstorff. And with the announcement by the President that this action had been taken, made in his address, the senate and house broke into loud cheers. It was plain that the action of the executive had almost unanimous approval of the representatives of the people who sat and heard him this afternoon.

If any additional evidence was needed to emphasize the great seriousness of the crisis confronting the people of the United States it was shown in the presence on the floor of the house of Chief Justice Edward Douglas White, and the justices of the Supreme Court of the nation. Officials declared that never in the memory of any of them had the supreme court been present at a joint session other than in the regular way on the occasion of inaugurations.

Everyone on the floor and the galleries listened with the most intense interest to the address of the president. His declaration of determination to protect American interests was greeted with the wildest cheering. His policy statements received the most emphatic approval from nearly every one present. There was none of the division of sentiment that has seemed to greet him on his former visits to Congress. When he announced his intention, if it should become necessary, to again address Congress the Republicans

Kings, Mayor Canfield and Arthur A. Brown.

William McE. Speer, on behalf of the city, opposed confirmation of the awards to riparian owners, and because of the questions of law involved and the desire of everyone to argue those questions he suggested that the court set aside one day on which to hear all the attorneys. A field day such as he suggested would, he thought, afford more opportunity for everyone to discuss the legal questions thoroughly and would save time.

Judge Hasbrouck adjourned the contested cases to the next special term, at which time, if there was not opportunity for the argument, another day could be fixed. Awards which were uncontested were ordered to be confirmed.

Tax Cases Heard.

In the Gardiner and Shawangunk tax cases brought against the assessors of those towns by the city of New York to review the city's assessment for various years, a motion was made on behalf of the city of New York by Mr. Speer for an order reducing the assessment for 1915 in both towns to the assessment for 1914, which is the amount fixed by the board of supervisors recently for 1914 and preceding years.

Augustus H. Van Buren, for the towns, opposed the motion for Shawangunk. He said that in making the return for the assessors of Shawangunk for 1915, the assessors had stated that they had not assessed the aqueduct structure. A motion to compel the assessors to file an amended return had been denied by Judge Hasbrouck and the appeal to the appellate division was now pending.

So far as the town of Shawangunk was concerned, he was willing to consent to the entry of the order asked by the city, although he said he knew nothing about the town board having passed a resolution approving the proceeding.

For the years 1910, 1911 and 1912, he said, the assessment had been stricken from the roll by Judge Hasbrouck and the appeals taken by the towns were pending in the appellate division. He was willing to withdraw these appeals. If the court would stipulate to cancel all costs in all proceedings against either the towns or the city of New York.

Mr. Speer said he was authorized to make certain stipulations but not the stipulation asked for. The appeals taken by the towns, he said, never had progressed and Mr. Van Buren had not even printed the cases on appeal.

Judge Hasbrouck reserved decision.

New Commissioner Appointed.

William H. Gibson having resigned as the New York city member of Ashokan Damage Commission No. 4, his associates, Philip Elting of this city and George Deyo of Nanapanoch, applied for the appointment of a commissioner to fill the vacancy.

Judge Hasbrouck appointed Attorney Abel I. Smith of 120 Broadway, New York, as Mr. Gibson's successor.

Auto Plant to Extend.

The H. I. A. T. automobile plant in Poughkeepsie will be doubled the coming summer. The present payroll is $5,000 weekly and 400 men are employed. It is expected this number will reach 900 by fall. The company expects to put a lower-priced car on the market.

DIPLOMATIC BREAK NOT NECESSARILY WAR

Washington Officials Lay Stress on This Fact—Next Move Must Come From Germany—U. S. Government Merely Kept its Word.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, Feb. 3.—Diplomatic relations with Germany have been broken off. It was officially admitted at the state department today that Ambassador Gerard at Berlin had been directed to request his passports. The department, at the same time, was preparing those of Ambassador von Bernstorff which were to be sent to him by special messenger as soon as they could be made ready. At the same time President Wilson was waiting to tell a joint session of Congress at 2 o'clock this afternoon the reasons for this action.

It was emphasized everywhere in official circles that the steps now in progress went only to a diplomatic break. The next move will be that of Germany. So far as the United States was concerned its action today was entirely due to the German withdrawal of pledges that submarine warfare would be cruiser warfare. The president had promised in the Sussex note that he would break diplomatic relations if Germany would not stop unrestrained submarine warfare. As the head of a self-respecting nation he was compelled to keep that promise in view of the latest German note.

Senators and representatives held hurried conferences while waiting for the president to reach the Capitol. All were very nervous. Senator Martin of Virginia, chairman of the appropriations committee, said that up to the present all that could be looked for was a diplomatic break.

"We are not making any preparations for big appropriations at this time," he said. "We hope that when Germany realizes the position of this government that she will reconsider her latest step."

However, it was admitted that the situation was fraught with dangerous possibilities. There are many Americans now on vessels approaching the danger zone. Should any of them lose their lives the hand of the United States would be forced. This fact was well known to the president and his advisers. It was thoroughly debated by them. And many of them held that should Americans be killed by submarine ruthless warfare it would be difficult for the United States to look upon it as anything but a direct act of war.

Count von Bernstorff and the embassy staff waited quietly for the arrival of "Eddie," Saxoy, Secretary Lansing's confidential messenger, with his passports. To intimate friends the ambassador made no secret of his sorrow over the outcome. He has done everything that human could do to prevent the break but has been convinced for the last week that it was certain to come. He had no plans. The affairs of the embassy were to be turned over to the Spanish ambassador to be handled while friendly relations were ruptured. And the ambassador expected that the United States would take care of the details of his return home. He expected that this government would see that the entire embassy staff is given safe conduct through the Entente blockade lines.

While the house waited for the president to discuss the naval appropriation bill.

Representative Callaway made a bitter attack upon it, declaring that it should appropriate money only for submarines. He declared that this government should not concern itself with the German blockade and was warmly rebuked by other members.

Representative Fess, of Ohio, tried to put through a motion to pass the bill without further debate in view of the existing crisis but failed to do so.

Republican Leader Mann made an appeal for calm judgment.

"If we are to take decisive action the wisest thing to do is to keep cool," he said. "We should not only keep cool until the president addresses us but keep cool afterwards."

It is known that the most elaborate precautions have been taken to safeguard the interests of the United States everywhere. These precautions go to the safety of navy yards, private ship yards, munition plants and the strategic railroads of the United States.

A general censorship as to the details of these precautions is in effect. This censorship will be extended to all matters concerning national defense within the next few hours if the exigencies of the situation shall so demand. Congress stands ready to give this authority to the government, it was officially stated.

SWISS LEGATION TO REPRESENT GERMANY

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, Feb. 3.—Although Ambassador von Bernstorff had not yet been handed his passports early this afternoon tentative arrangements were completed for the Swiss legation to take over the affairs of the German embassy.

Count von Bernstorff maintained his silence except for saying:

"I am now nothing but a private citizen and as a private citizen I never like to talk."

The embassy was in a quandary as to what would be done in Russia and England, where the American government is looking after German interests. The situation is an entirely new one, they said, and it could not be conjectured what course would now be pursued.

A squad of secret service men was placed at the embassy this afternoon, taking the place of the usual uniformed police guard. The few people who gathered near merely looked at the big building with curious eyes and hastened on.

COTTON SOARS ON WAR SCARE

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, Feb. 3.—After dropping 20 to 30 points on the announcement that the United States has broken diplomatic relations with Germany, a heavy demand from Liverpool and trade interests caused a sensational advance in cotton today. There appeared to be a scarcity of shorts and May and July sold above 15c, or nearly a hundred points over Friday's close.

The final tone was excited with prices 30 to 100 points net higher.

A meeting of the Milk Dealers' Association in Plattkill took place in the grange hall Thursday evening. Joseph Hasbrouck of Modena, president, presided. There was no special business. There was none of the division of sentiment that has seemed to greet him on his former visits to Congress. When he announced his intention, if it should become necessary, to again address Congress the Republicans led in the applause which swept across the chamber like the rattle of artillery.

Washington, Feb. 3.—President Wilson's address to the joint session of Congress was as follows:

"To the Congress, Feb. 3, 1917. 'Gentlemen of the Congress: The Imperial German government on the thirty-first of January announced to this government and to the governments of the other neutral nations that on and after the first day of February, the present month, it would adopt a policy with regard to the use of submarines against all shipping sailing to or from French or certain designated areas of the high seas to which it is clearly my duty to call your attention.

Let me remind the Congress that on the eighteenth of April last, in view of the sinking on the twenty-fourth of March of the cross-Channel passenger steamer Sussex by a German submarine, without summons or warning, and the consequent loss of the lives of several citizens of the United States, who were passengers aboard her, this government addressed a note to the Imperial German government, in which it made the following declaration:

"If it is still the purpose of the Imperial government to prosecute relentless and indiscriminate warfare against vessels of commerce by the use of submarines without regard to what the government of the United States must consider the sacred and indisputable rules of international law, and the universally recognized dictates of humanity, the government of the United States is at last, forced to the conclusion that there is but one course it can pursue. Unless the Imperial government should now immediately declare and effect an abandonment of its present methods of submarine warfare against passenger and freight carrying vessels, the government of the United States can have no choice but to sever diplomatic relations with the German empire altogether.

In reply to this declaration the Imperial German government gave this government the following assurance: 'The German government is prepared to do its utmost to confine the operations of war for the rest of its duration to the fighting forces of the belligerents, thereby also insuring the freedom of the seas, a principle upon which the German government believes, now as before, to be in agreement with the government of the United States.

"The German government, guided by this idea, notifies the government of the United States that the German naval forces have received the following orders: In accordance with the general principles of visit and search and destruction of merchant vessels recognized by international law, such vessels, both within and without the zone declared as naval war zone, shall not be sunk without warning and without saving human lives, unless these ships attempt to escape or offer resistance.

"But," it added, "neutrals cannot expect that Germany, forced to fight for her existence, shall, for the sake of neutral interest, restrict the use of an effective weapon if her enemy is permitted to continue to apply at will methods of warfare violating the rules of international law. Such a demand would be incompatible with the character of neutrality, and the German government is convinced that the government of the United States does not think of making such a demand, knowing that the government of the United States has repeatedly declared that it is determined to restore the principle of the freedom of the seas, from what quarter it has been violated."

"To this the government of the United States replied on the eighth of May, accepting, of course, the assurances given, but adding:

"The government of the United States feels it necessary to state that it takes it for granted that the Imperial German government does not intend to imply that the maintenance of its newly announced policy is, in any way, contingent upon the course or result of diplomatic negotiations between the government of the United States and other belligerent governments. It is not the intention of the United States to permit certain passages in the Imperial Government's note of the fourth instant might appear to be susceptible of that construction. In order, however, to avoid any possible misunderstanding, the government of the United States notifies the Imperial Government that it cannot for a moment entertain much less discuss, a suggestion that respect for German naval officials for the rights of citizens of the United States, upon the high seas should in any way or in the slightest degree be made contingent upon the conduct of any other government concerning the rights of neutrals and non-combatants. Responsibility in such matters is single, not joint; absolute, not relative."

"To this note of the eighth of May the Imperial German Government made no reply.

British steamship Appam, brought to port a year ago by a German prize crew after her capture by the Albatross, was taken over by the United States government today.

New Orleans, Feb. 3.—Interned German vessels here were taken into the roadstead today and surrounded by United States gunboats.

New York, Feb. 3.—Foreriv activity is apparent in the Brooklyn navy yard today and all passes have been recalled, double guards being placed at all entrances.

Copenhagen, Feb. 3.—Grave food shortages are threatened immediately in Norway, Sweden, Holland and Denmark as a result of Germany's intensified submarine blockade. Shipping is paralyzed and anxiety is general.

Amsterdam, Feb. 3.—Dispatches from Berlin today indicated that in some quarters there is less optimism over the outcome of Germany's intensified submarine warfare than first greeted the announcement. Optimism in Germany is due to the possibility of a break with the United States and other neutrals.

Washington, Feb. 3.—Diplomatic relations with Germany have been broken off. It was officially admitted at the state department today that Ambassador Gerard at Berlin had been directed to request his passports. The department, at the same time, was preparing those of Ambassador von Bernstorff which were to be sent to him by special messenger as soon as they could be made ready. At the same time President Wilson was waiting to tell a joint session of Congress at 2 o'clock this afternoon the reasons for this action.

It was emphasized everywhere in official circles that the steps now in progress went only to a diplomatic break. The next move will be that of Germany. So far as the United States was concerned its action today was entirely due to the German withdrawal of pledges that submarine warfare would be cruiser warfare. The president had promised in the Sussex note that he would "break diplomatic relations if Germany would not stop unrestrained submarine warfare. As the head of a self-respecting nation he was compelled to keep that promise to the view of the latest German note.

Sensational and representatives held hurried conferences while waiting for the president to leave the Capitol. All were very nervous. Senator Martin of Virginia, chairman of the appropriations committee, said that up to the present all that could be looked for was a diplomatic break.

"We are not making any preparations for big appropriations at this time," he said. "We hope that when Germany realizes the position of this government that she will reconsider her latest step."

However, it was admitted that the situation was fraught with dangerous possibilities. There are many Americans now on vessels approaching the danger zone. Should any of them lose their lives the hand of the United States would be forced. The fact was well known to the president and his advisors. It was thoroughly debated by them. And many of them held that should Americans be killed by submarine warfare it would be difficult for the United States to look upon it as anything but a direct act of war.

Count von Bernstorff and the embassy staff waited quietly for the arrival of "Eddie" Savoy, Secretary Lansing's confidential messenger, with his passports. To intimate friends the ambassador made no secret of his sorrow over the outcome. He has done everything that human could do to prevent the break but has been convinced for the last week that it was certain to come. He had no plans. The affairs of the embassy were to be turned over to the Spanish ambassador to be handled while friendly relations were ruptured. And the ambassador expected that the United States would take care of the details of his return home. He expected that this government would see that the entire embassy staff is given safe conduct through the Entente blockade lines.

While the house waited for the president to discuss the naval appropriation bill.

Representative Callaway made a bitter attack upon it, declaring that it should appropriate money only for submarines. He declared that this government should not concern itself with the German blockade and was warmly rebuked by other members.

Representative Fess, of Ohio, tried to put through a motion to pass the bill without further debate in view of the existing crisis but failed to do so.

Republican Leader Mann made an appeal for calm judgment.

"If we are to take decisive action the wisest thing to do is to keep cool," he said. "We should not only keep cool until the president addresses us but keep cool afterwards."

It is known that the most elaborate precautions have been taken to safeguard the interests of the United States everywhere. These precautions go to the safety of navy yards, private ship yards, munition plants and the strategic railroads of the United States.

A general censorship as to the details of these precautions is in effect. This censorship will be exacting.

DIPLOMATIC BREAK NOT NECESSARILY WAR

Washington Officials Lay Stress on This Fact--Next Move Must Come From Germany--U. S. Government Merely Kept its Word.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Washington, Feb. 3.—Although Ambassador von Bernstorff had not yet been handed his passports early this afternoon tentative arrangements were completed for the Swiss legation to take over the affairs of the German embassy.

Count von Bernstorff maintained his silence except for saying: "I am now nothing but a private citizen and as a private citizen I never like to talk."

The embassy was in a quandary as to what would be done in Russia and England, where the American government is looking after German interests. The situation is not entirely new one, they said, and it could not be conjectured what course would now be pursued.

A squad of secret service men was placed at the embassy this afternoon, taking the place of the usual uniformed police guard. The few people who gathered near merely looked at the big building with curious eyes and hustled on.

Only Fairness Wanted

The most reputable brewers in the United States are naturally opposed to prohibition that does not prohibit—such a law as is favored by paid reformers and others of that ilk. The brewers favor a regulated and controlled traffic which will respect itself and be respected. They believe in temperance in all things, and contend that individual training and self-control will do more to create temperance among the American people than ill-considered laws under which people are inclined to disregard traditional habits of self-restraint.

FINEST ICE IN YEARS HARVESTED

Ice harvesting on the Hudson river is progressing and it was estimated today by a well known ice man that at least half of the crop had been harvested. The ice this year is said to be the best harvested in a long time. The average thickness of the crop is about 11 inches. There has been a scarcity of labor, but that has been overcome by the fine ice harvesting weather since cutting started. The labor question is also easing up owing to the fact that the ice workers are returning from the lakes in New Jersey and are getting work on the river in this vicinity. With the fine weather for harvesting that has been experienced the work on the ice fields has not been delayed. If weather conditions permit it is likely that a full crop of ice will be harvested before the close of the month.

GOOD PINEAPPLE DISHES.

There is no fruit which lends itself so nicely to salad combinations, puddings or creams, as the pineapple.

Pineapple Ice.—Cook together for five minutes 2 1/2 cups of sugar, a quart of water; add the juice of two lemons and the grated fruit of two pineapples. Strain and press through a cloth until all the juice is extracted. Partly freeze, then add the whites of two eggs and finish freezing.

For pineapple ice cream, use any recipe for ice cream and stir in finely shredded pineapple with a little flavoring. A vanilla ice cream is delicious served with a spoonful of shredded preserved pineapple, with a few chopped pecans or almonds sprinkled over each dish.

Pineapple with ordinary apple juice makes a most delicious jelly. The pineapple alone will not make a satisfactory jelly.

Pineapple Marmalade.—Pare and grate a sufficient number of ripe pineapples. Weigh the pulp and place it in a granite preserving kettle and let simmer gently for 20 minutes. Add three-quarters of a pound of sugar for each pound of the fruit, boil seven minutes and put into jars.

Hawaiian Dessert.—Soak a cupful of tapioca in a cupful of cold water over night. In the morning place in a double boiler with three cupfuls of brown sugar and enough water to cover. Add pineapple juice as required, and cook until the tapioca is transparent, stirring frequently. When serving, pour over the tapioca shredded pineapple, sugar and whipped cream.

Another delicious candy is prepared by making balls of the fondant and pressing a small cube in each for decoration.

Pineapple Marshmallow.—Mix equal amounts of marshmallows cut in quarters and pineapple cut in cubes; add a little pineapple juice and allow it to stand for a while in a cold place. Just before serving, add this to lightly sweetened whipped cream, and a few chopped almonds. Serve in sherbet cups, garnished with cherries.

DELAWARE COUNTY BANK CASE HEARD

Fight For Control of Griffin Corners Institution Before Judge Hasbrouck on Motion to Vacate Injunction—Sale of Five Shares of Stock in Issue.

The fight for control of the First National Bank of Griffin Corners, which has been in progress for more than a year, finally has reached its climax, and a motion was made before Judge Hasbrouck at this morning's special term of the supreme court to vacate an injunction granted on January sixth, which restrained the bank, John E. Scudder, U. S. Grant Cure and Fred D. Cure from transferring five shares of stock in which the control of the bank rests, or from voting such shares at the annual meeting of stockholders, or collecting dividends on the same.

The present proceeding was begun by Albert A. Halperin, who obtained from Judge Nichols the injunction which the defendants now seek to have vacated. County Attorney John W. Eckert appeared for the defendants and the motion, which was opposed by George A. Speenburgh, who appeared with Eugene E. Howe of Griffin Corners, of counsel.

The five shares of bank stock which control the situation in the bank were issued by the bank in May, 1911, to Harold O. Judd. Subsequently Judd became indebted to Scudder on two notes and assigned Scudder shares of stock to him as collateral. Afterward Eugene E. Howe and others in Griffin Corners formed a syndicate and became engaged in financial operations which included an agreement to purchase certain stock for $10,000. All the members of the purchasing syndicate were able to raise their share of the money except Howe, and under the agreement he was to raise his share of the money by selling his share of the stock to the syndicate.

To keep their investment intact and to provide the funds necessary to complete their purchase under their agreement, they made a note and secured John E. Scudder as an endorser, transferring to him as collateral security two mortgages and the five shares of bank stock. After a series of transactions, five shares of bank stock, originally given as collateral security for a $500 note, became part security on a $2,200 note on which Scudder was endorser.

Scudder claims that the bank finally insisted on payment of the $2,200 note, and he came to Kingston and consulted Judd, who was at the time Judd told him to sell the bank stock and apply the proceeds on the $2,200 note. U. S. Grant Cure agreed to buy the stock which was to be transferred to his son, Fred D. Cure, who was employed in the bank, and as Mr. Cure did not have the cash at that time to pay Scudder, he gave him a note payable in ten days. Mr. Cure paid the note later.

The transfer of the bank stock to Fred D. Cure by Scudder was made on Saturday morning but he did not pay the proceeds to the bank on that day. During the day Judd raised the money to meet the $2,200 note and paid it at the bank. That evening he demanded the return of the five shares of stock, which Scudder was unable to deliver. According to Judd's statement, Scudder told him: "The stock is yours but I can't give it to you tonight," but promised to return it Monday.

Scudder subsequently was indicted for grand larceny in the first degree and was convicted by a Delaware county jury. Fred D. Cure and Augustus Todd also were indicted but have not been tried. Scudder took an appeal to the appellate division, where the appeal is pending. On Scudder's trial, his wife testified in regard to the conversation between her husband and Judd, that her husband told Judd he did not know where the stock was.

The transactions a year ago gave control of the bank to one faction, and among the directors elected at the annual meeting of stockholders a few days later were both U. S. Grant Cure and his son, Fred D. Cure. The injunction obtained from Judge Nichols on January sixth of this year by Mr. Halperin prevented the five shares of stock from being voted at the annual meeting held on the following week, and on the election of directors neither of the Cures was elected directors by the opposing faction.

County Attorney Eckert, in support of his motion to vacate the injunction, cited the revised statutes of the United States in relation to restrictions imposed on stockholders against National Banks, and said in answer to Judge Hasbrouck's questions, that his clients were trying to save the bank.

George A. Speenburgh, in opposing the motion to vacate the injunction, contended that under the facts in the case, the injunction could be vacated only because of irregularities in the papers on which it was granted, and that such irregularities must be set forth fully in the motion papers by his adversary. No meeting of stockholders was pending at which the five shares in dispute could be voted, and the entire case could be tried, if the defendants desired, at the trial term of the supreme court to be held in Delaware county on February 13.

The reason for Judd waiting a year before obtaining an injunction, said Mr. Speenburgh, was that he himself had been indebted in a situation in which he had been restrained from disposing of his property and only within thirty days of the granting of the injunction had he been in a position to dispose of his property and raise money with which to pay indebtedness, including indebtedness to Scudder. The fight for control was entirely between stockholders and in no way involved the assets of the bank.

Judd's rights in his stock could not be extinguished, he insisted, by a private sale under any power of attorney without sufficient notice, and Scudder never had given any notice. Furthermore, Scudder was only the fourth and last endorser on the note for which the bank stock had been assigned to him as collateral security, and he never had paid one dollar on the note, and therefore had no become entitled to sell the stock, because he had no claim against Judd that had not been amply secured. Until he had paid something on the note, he was not entitled to maintain any action against Judd, and therefore had no claim to the stock or a right to sell it. After the conversation in the Sahler Sanitarium, there had been two renewals of the note regarding which the conversation took place, and these renewals had been made in agreement made in that conversation. Although Scudder held other security for his liability as an endorser, it was significant that he never had attempted to dispose of that security. He had had his day in court, said Mr. Speenburgh, and had been convicted.

The continuation of the injunction was necessary, he insisted, in order to prevent the stock from being sold, which plan, if followed, would prevent the real owner from being served with papers which could determine the rightful ownership.

Judge Hasbrouck reserved decision.

Peter Barmann Surprised.

A very pleasant surprise party took place Friday night at the West Shore Hotel grill, it being the 42nd anniversary of Peter J. Barmann's birthday. Mr. Barmann started for the movies with his family but on the way was met by a messenger who told him he must come at once to see Mr. Pessenar. On his arrival he was ushered into the grill room and there he saw about 20 of his supper in honor of his birthday. To say he was surprised is putting it mild and he had to at once send from his family to come to the hotel to participate in the feast and on their arrival the festivities began. Congratulations were in order and everyone spoke a few words. Everyone enjoyed the meal which was served in excellent style by Miss Host Pessenar and before going home Mr. Barmann confessed that his friends had put one over on him this time and that they thanked them very much for their kind thought of him.

STOCK MARKET WELL SUPPORTED

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Feb. 3.—Trading was wild and excited on the stock exchange shortly before the close at noon today. Cancellations of selling orders came at the same time that buying orders were telephoned and telegraphed. In most cases these buying orders were without price limits.

Steel Common rose from 99 1/2 to above 104, while Industrial Alcohol, after selling at 11 1/2, rose to 12 1/2. Bethlehem, which sold down to 36 1/2, rose to 40. Gains of 2 to 10 points in other issues were so numerous that it would be impossible to mention them in detail. It required ten minutes after the close before the sales all could be printed on the exchange tape. The final tone was strong. Government bonds unchanged; railway and others firm.

At the regular meeting of the official board of the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church held last evening the board voted unanimously to request the bishop to return the Rev. George M. Cranston to them for another year. Following the business meeting, the members of the board and their wives retired to the lunch room of Richard Ryan where a chicken supper was served with all of the fixings and in the faultless style of Proprietor Ryan.

After the good things had been stowed away the members of the board on behalf of the members of the church and congregation extended to the pastor an invitation to remain for another year. The Rev. Mr. Cranston has been for the past three years pastor of the church and during that time the members of the church have seen the charge grow and prosper and it is their wish that he be returned to them for another year. District Superintendent Bell was requested to use his influence to have the Rev. Mr. Cranston returned to them again.

Since the Rev. Mr. Cranston has been pastor of the church every department had grown and reached top notch and as Dr. Bell said in speaking of the church and its present pastor, the reputation of the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church, and its officials had gone out over the entire district and through the conference. Dr. Bell spoke of the work which has been accomplished under the guidance of the present pastor and in closing said it would be a pleasure in conveying the message of the board to Bishop Wilson and he heartily endorsed the action taken by the board. During his talk Dr. Bell interspersed his serious thoughts with many a humorous idea and remark.

In replying to the district superintendent, the pastor thanked the members for the action which they had taken and said that not alone through his efforts had the many improvements been made possible, but it was largely due to the loyalty and cooperation of the members of the church, for no one could accomplish a great deal without the help of the congregation. He spoke of the activity and loyalty shown during the recent campaign of improving the church building was loud in his praise for every member of the board and congregation.

Speeches and remarks were then made by the members of the board and their guests. President of the Board of Trustees Ira Britt acted as chairman of the meeting and toastmaster and introduced the speakers of the evening.

Among those who gave short talks during the evening were: F. A. Raenhart, Benjamin Hammond, Walter Peterson, R. B. Schoonover, Frank Hyatt, Fred Dressel, Ira Woolsey, Jason Carl, Edward Goetsch, William Riel, Myron Styles, George Miller, George Phillips, William Balfe and Emerson Higgins. Following the speech making a rising vote of thanks was extended Mr. and Mrs. Ryan for the excellent chicken dinner which had been served.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Ira Britt, Rev. and Mrs. G. M. Cranston, Miss Irene Cranston, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Peterson, Mr. and Mrs. William Balfe, Mr. and Mrs. Myron Styles, Mr. and Mrs. B. Funeral of Mrs. Dimmick.

One of the largest gatherings ever assembled to do honor to the memory of a Kingston woman was that which took place on Friday afternoon at St. James's M. E. Church to pay tribute to the memory of Mrs. Samuel G. Dimmick, whose death occurred on Tuesday afternoon of this week. At 2 o'clock the flower covered casket was borne into the sunshine filled church to the solemn music of Chopin's Funeral March as played by Miss Burhans, organist of the church. The honorary pall bearers were Myron Teller, Judge James A. Betts, DeWitt Roosa, Samuel L. Drake, M. Westbrook Snyder, William R. Harrison, Samuel D. Gibson and Charles De La Vergne. Mrs. Dimmick's immediate neighbors formed the devoted family closely following the casket into the church. While there was an unusually large delegation of Wiltywyck Chapter, D. A. R., and of the various church organizations of women with which Mrs. Dimmick was closely affiliated, there was also a large representation of the prominent men of Kingston who left their business to do honor to a woman of such worth and such a friend. The services were opened with the singing of "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," sung by Miss Molyneux, accompanied by Miss Burhans. The Rev. T. A. Baragwanath, pastor of the St. James M. E. Church, of which Mrs. Dimmick had so long been a member, and the Rev. Richard E. Bell, district superintendent, were the officiating clergymen. Following the reading of appropriate passages of scripture, the Rev. Mr. Bell offered a prayer of gratitude to our Heavenly Father for the beautiful life just ended, which was in itself an eulogy. Miss Molyneux then sang "Abide With Me." Mr. Baragwanath, in paying his tribute to Mrs. Dimmick, spoke of her as "a woman rich in love," and noted how she had loved life, living it fully almost to the last. She loved the beautiful in nature, in art, in surroundings of the home, in human nature. She loved her home, where though living alone, she made welcome a host of friends. She loved her friends, and in a marked degree did she possess a genius for friendship. She loved her church, in which as lady superintendent she had served her Master for many years and having resigned only a few weeks before her death. She loved her Lord best of all, serving and worshipping Him most devoutly. "Now death does not end all this," said Mr. Baragwanath, "for death cannot destroy love, and countless others will still be helped because of her living and loving." Mr. Baragwanath closed with these words: "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord. Even so saith the Spirit, for they do rest from their labors and their works do follow them. Thanks be unto God, our Lord, Jesus Christ, through our Lord, Jesus Baragwanath, said that in spite of the courageous and victorious words with which Mr. Baragwanath had just closed, still this death seemed more like defeat than victory; the defeat of human skill in the victory of disease; defeat of love which would have kept her with us; defeat of hope, her hope of recovery and the fond hope of friends; defeat of faith in the efficacy of prayer. But the defeat was only seeming. The faces of those who have gone beyond are surrounded with a halo of love which no artist can copy—a statement which seemed particularly appropriate to Mrs. Dimmick—love was found to be stronger than death; hope and faith were fulfilled in the resurrection of Christ. After all, life offers nothing but suffering, but one does not really live until one loves; and love is not fulfilled without sacrifice and suffering, and "to live in the hearts we leave behind is not to die." The service at the church was brought to a close with the singing by all present of a favorite hymn of Mrs. Dimmick's. "Blest be the tie that binds," and the pronouncing of the benediction by the Rev. Mr. Baragwanath. The interment was in Wiltywyck cemetery.

SAUGERTIES GIVEN GAME OVER K. H. S.

Friday evening the Kingston high school varsity went to Saugerties for a game of basketball with the high school of that village. The local team spent the usual forty minutes on the boards with their opponents, and made an incredible score of a point for every minute of the game. Referee Morgan of Saugerties saw to it however that Saugerties gained two more points, making the score 42-40, in the favor of the upriver team.

This account is written by a student who has gloried in the no-defeat season prospects of the maroon and white varsity. He feels that Morgan's, (the referee,) conduct was questionable, but that the Saugerties team was square. These are the reasons for the opinion. It will be remembered that this is the same man that caused some unpleasantness last year in the game with Saugerties. The Kingston high school team is noted for its clean, square game, but nineteen fouls were called on them and twelve on Saugerties. At half time Kingston led by a score of 20 to 17 and local supporters know how the maroon's game, in the second half, compares with their playing in the first. It may be wrong to censure the referee, but circumstances do not seem to be in the favor of the referee. It will be noted that Dolson again made half the points for his side.

The Saugerties five played a remarkable game, however, and it would have been so close anyway that a good sport would not have favored the weaker side. Keeley and Peters are known of old and are worth favorable consideration, as was all the rest of the team. The local team's defeat cannot be attributed to any unfairness of their rightful opponents.

Kingston was probably handicapped by the absence of Reiver, but T. Wilson filled in his position the best that any substitute could possibly do. Joyce was on deck in spite of the blood poisoning in his arm. It will be noted that Dolson again made half the points for his side.

There will of course be an opportunity to pay back this score by a clean, square rubber later in the year, which both teams naturally desire, but will not erase this once adverse score from the slate.

Only Fairness Wanted

The most reputable brewers in the United States are naturally opposed to prohibition that does not prohibit—such a law as is favored by paid reformers and others of that ilk. The brewers favor a regulated and controlled traffic which will respect itself and be respected. They believe in temperance in all things, and contend that individual training and self-control will do more to create temperance among the American people than ill-considered laws under which people are inclined to disregard traditional habits of self-restraint.

MOVE AHEAD CLUB ENTERTAINS I.O.R.M.

A large number of brother Red Men gathered at the rooms of Minnesota Tribe, No. 139, Improved Order of Red Men on Thursday evening to see what the "Move Ahead Club" had to offer for their first night's entertainment, and were well pleased with the showing made. Every meeting night something will be done to make the evening one well spent and Thursday evening after the regular meeting of the lodge, tables were brought into the lodge room and checkers, dominoes and cards were played. As the clock pointed toward eleven the members of the Move Ahead Club served a fine oyster supper prepared by the committee and when this had been stowed away the members left for their homes.

Next Thursday evening the committee will serve another supper of some kind to be determined by the committee and at each meeting some new thing will be brought out for the members of the lodge. All members who have not yet attended the meetings and found out the purpose of the club are asked to come out and find out what great things have been accomplished by this band of "live wires."

FINEST ICE IN YEARS HARVESTED

Ice harvesting on the Hudson river is progressing and it was estimated today by a well known ice man that at least half of the crop had been harvested. The ice this year is said to be the best harvested in a long time. The average thickness of the crop is about 11 inches. There has been a scarcity of labor, but that has been overcome by the fine ice harvesting weather since cutting started. The labor question is also easing up owing to the fact that the ice workers are returning from the lakes in New Jersey and are getting work on the river in this vicinity. With the fine weather for harvesting that has been experienced the work on the ice fields has not been delayed. If weather conditions permit it is likely that a full crop of ice will be harvested before the close of the month.

KINGSTON, N. Y., FEB. 3, 1917.

If the throwing of bricks could only have been made a factor in the national defense, newspaper readers would never have learned how to spell that overworked word, Preparedness. Major General Leonard Wood is the latest regular army officer thus to exercise his pitching arm at the same old target, the National Guard. He pronounced the militia system as "vicious and indefensible," but was forced to admit that the States were not responsible for the numerous failures attendant upon mobilization last June. That the Federal Government's supply plan for the State troops collapsed within ten days after the guardsmen were called out by the President is a well known fact, one that does not need corroboration from General Wood. His view is the same as that of Major General Hugh L. Scott, chief of staff, who wielded the hammer on the militia system only a few weeks ago before a Senate committee. What these regular army officers hope to accomplish by these tactics is plain. They think that by eliminating the militia, universal training will come into immediate favor. Without questioning the worth of the proposed system, it would seem better to start some genuine constructive legislation to the end sought rather than to repeatedly hammer upon the National Guard which, as the army authorities admit, was more efficient than the War Department which so hastily assumed control of it. The one utterance of General Wood that deserves commendation is his statement that he would like to go after the War Department with a sand-bag and reorganize it. In this view the country is pretty well disposed to agree. To paraphrase the late lamented Dewey's famous remark: "You may fire Baker whenever you're ready, Mr. Wilson."

The Governor and a number of Republicans in the Legislature are willing to take the count on State partnership in prizefighting, according to reports from Albany. There was never any widespread sentiment in favor of the law creating a Boxing Commission, salaried or unsalaried, and the process of separating a gullible public from its money has continued for several years without developing a single redeeming feature in favor of legalized brutality. Even the advocates of Preparedness, who have seldom failed to capitalize any exercise or sport likely to prove useful to the propaganda, dodge all reference to the manly art of self-defense. This may or may not be due to the presence in this country of so many British lads who have developed efficiency in the flat arena and who evidently prefer the jingle of the gate receipts to the reverberations of the trenches. Regardless of such views, however, prizefighting, even under the innocuous title of boxing exhibition, has failed to justify itself as an institution worthy of being licensed by the commonwealth. The solar plexus blow which terminated a ring battle and the earthly career of one boxer, in Albany the other night was not necessary as evidence that State sanction of prizefighting has been a distinct failure, having tended to lower, if that were possible, the prevailing standards in the field of pugilism.

Time was when the farmers were praying for dollar wheat, but the war has passed that prayer over to consumers. The lastnamed class does not seem to be making any more headway with its petition than did Huck Finn in praying for that fishline. Our breaking off relations with Germany, which now seems an inevitable step, together with the efficiency that may be developed in the submarine blockade, is bound to have a tremendous effect upon our home markets. Holland and Norway have both declared embargoes on shipments and if this country should follow suit, prices for foodstuffs may come tumbling down with munitions stocks. Certainly they are high enough as it is. The humble potato is now quoted at $2.80 a bushel retail in Kingston, a price placing this tuber in a class with the Southern yam. The warm spell which marked the exit of January gave a deal of encouragement to the American hen and resulted in dropping egg prices considerably. Beef, when all the high lights of other food articles are taken into consideration, has remained surprisingly stationary. A few more years of such prices as have prevailed the last twelve months or more, and there will be a general stampede in the back-to-the-land movement. How great a strain the market basket has been entailing upon the family purse may be guessed from the speech of so many people whose first thought amid all this war talk centered upon the possible effect on food prices should the United States enter the conflict.

Early shopping, the slogan a couple of months ago, has been changed to early shipping by the fertilizer manufacturers. The number of people in this world who are demanding that everybody else do things early is becoming almost insufferable. In this instance, the proponents of the slogan have common sense on their side—a point unhappily lacking in many of these hurry-up reforms. They are going after the farmers and urging them to order their phosphates and other plant foods now so that the existing car shortage, if prolonged through Spring, cannot occasion any hold-up in the transportation of the fertilizers so essential to good crops all over the land. At this time of year the hauling of these useful aids to agriculture can be accomplished much more easily than when the roads are broken up in the Spring. The farmers have more time too, as the only addition to the winter routine of any consequence is the time devoted to overhauling the automobile. The speeding-up of the movement of the vast quantities of fertilizers needed annually on our farm lands is both timely and useful. The Freeman is glad to give space to urge upon the attention of rural readers the practical value of this suggestion from the makers of fertilizers.

LITTLE LAUGHS.
"Did you get acclimated when you went to Cuba?" "Yes, and by the best doctor I could find, but it didn't take."—Baltimore American.

Jack—"But what does your faith, or see in me to object to?" Edith—"I don't see anything in you. That's why he objects."—Boston Transcript.

Wife (whispering to her husband in church): "Wake up!" Husband: "It's only the cat trying to get in, Jane. There's nobody in the house but us."—Judge.

"Do you think peace suggestions exert any practical influence?" "Sometimes," replied Senator Borah, thoughtfully, "more than is desirable—in the stock market."—Washington Star.

The Husband—"Where have you been?" The Wife—"Playing bridge." "Did you win?" "No, I lost." "You ought to be ashamed of yourself. You should have been at home looking after your children."—Yonkers Statesman.

"What's the use of buying diamonds? They are just small pebbles. You can't eat them or get any real good from them." "But they show you are wealthy." "You can get the same result by having eggs on the chin. And you have the satisfaction of eating the eggs as well."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A Willing Victim.
Margaret, aged four, had eaten one of two boxes of berries that her mother had purchased for company. Her mother cried, "What would you do if you had a little girl and she ate a whole box of strawberries?" "Oh, mamma!" she exclaimed eagerly, "I'd make her eat the other box."—The Christian Herald.

Yes, He Was Broke.
Going into a telegraph office one day, Snapper Garrison, the jockey, saw an old sporting friend engaged in writing a telegram. "Garrison," he said, "I'm sending a telegram to my wife, and I'm broke. Be a good fellow and prepay it for me."

Garrison took the message and glanced at it. It read: "Cook up everything you've got in the house today. I'm coming home tomorrow to hock the stove!" Garrison sent the message.—Friar's Epistle.

No Quarter for Him.
Mrs. Jones was standing in the doorway talking with old Mr. Ham, a neighbor. They were speaking in complimentary terms about an impostor who had lately passed through the village, swindling right and left. "He'd better not come round here again!" exclaimed Mrs. Jones indignantly. "If he does, I'll give him no quarter."

"Quarter," shouted the enraged old man, "quarter! Well, I guess not! I wouldn't give him ten cents!"—Youth's Companion.

And They Did.
Election time was drawing near and an enthusiastic politician was addressing his constituents in a frenzied speech. Not a few of his assertions, reduced to cold thought, were diametrically opposed to one another, but each proposal was received with applause. A judge turned to his companion and said: "This reminds me of the Irish leader who was cheering his men on to battle. 'Min,' said he, 'ye are on the verge of battle, and I want to ask ye before ye start, will ye fight, or will ye run?'"

"We will," came a chorus of eager replies.
"Which will ye do," says he.
"We will not," says they.
"Aha, thank ye, me min!" says he. "I thought ye would!"—New York Times.

The Unlaid Eggs

The grain-fed hen usually carries a number of unlaid eggs—yolks which she cannot complete into eggs and lay, because her feed lacks the necessary white-forming nutrients. (That's why egg-yolks are found in a hen, when it is dressed). Many of these yolks of unfinished eggs are finally absorbed back into the hen's system.

Missouri Experiment Station tests showed that 100 lbs. of wheat, corn, oats, barley and kafir corn make (above bodily maintenance) an average of 224 yolks and only 154 whites. Based on data from the same experiments, Purina formulas produce, (above bodily maintenance) as follows:—

Purina Scratch Feed 247.49 yolks 142.11 whites
Purina Chicken Chowder 182.05 " 282.55 "
Combined Ration 429.54 yolks 424.66 whites

These feeds, used in combination, form the most perfectly balanced and economical egg producer you can buy. Purina Chicken Chowder is the egg-completing ration; containing exactly the right feed elements to make the necessary whites. That's why we can positively guarantee

on Purina Chicken Chowder if fed with Purina Scratch Feed as directed. You take no risk. Write for further information and for our FREE Poultry Book (64 pages, illustrated). ## JURY TOOK MANY BALLOTS ON CASE

A number of ballots were taken by the jurors who tried Joe Weber for murder, before they finally reached a verdict of manslaughter in the second degree. During most of the ballots, eight jurors voted for manslaughter in the first degree and four voted for manslaughter in the second degree.

The jurors based their verdict on the facts as they believed them to exist, disregarding the testimony of Mrs. Chambers, who testified that from a distance of 140 feet she had seen Elmdorf go through his yard carrying a stone with which he struck Weber, and also disregarding the testimony of Weber.

The jury did not believe that Weber had any grudge against Elmdorf, and that if his intention had been to kill him—constituting murder in the first degree—he would not have fired first at the women who were sitting on the porch. His firing at them was another matter. Their reason for disbelieving Mrs. Chambers was that most of them from experience concluded that it was impossible for a person standing at an elevation nine feet above another level to look down, under the branches of trees, through a wagon top which stood in Weber's yard, and through a vine-covered fence and to see what a man carried in his hand when the back of his hand was toward her.

The jury did consider that the trouble between the Webers and Elmdorfs was largely a race feud, but in their deliberations they did not allow, they say, the question of race to influence them in the slightest degree, and to them as jurors the fact that Weber was a white man and Elmdorf was a negro carried no weight whatever. While the feud was between the two families, and practically between some of the white families and the black family of neighborhood, they failed to see that Weber carried any feeling against Charles Elmdorf sufficient for him to determine to kill him without premeditation, so they eliminated murder in the second degree from their consideration.

As between the two degrees of manslaughter, which is killing in the heat of passion to which Judge Jenkins in his charge referred several times, the jurors who favored a verdict of manslaughter in the second degree pointed out that the charge of the judge did not state whether a gun was a dangerous weapon, in the eyes of the law, and this was the determining factor in reaching a verdict of manslaughter in the second degree.

An innovation during the trial was the receipt of letters by the jury. Judge Jenkins acting as jury clerk in the distribution and opening of letters, which he read in the presence of each juror who received letters before handing the letters to the jurors. At various times during prolonged murder trials, letters for jurors either have been handed to them unopened, without knowledge of what their contents might be, or have been held for them until the end of the trial.

District Attorney Traver today expressed himself as satisfied with the verdict. He believed that Weber had had a fair trial and the district attorney had no complaint under all the circumstances. The case had several angles and the interpretation which The People had placed on them was an interpretation which was placed after much conscientious deliberation and consideration of all the facts, but it was for the jury to determine what the verdict should be. The fairness which characterized the trial had been carried out to the end by the charge of the court. Throughout the entire case there had been no unnecessary delay, to the end that the scales of justice as nearly as possible should balance.

PATIENT GRADUATED FROM T.B. HOSPITAL

Perhaps one of the most interesting bits of news which has come from the Tuberculosis Hospital in a long time is that Miss Marjorie Davis, the first patient of the original tuberculosis camp when it was opened in 1909, has left the hospital to make her home with her aunt, Mrs. Higgins, of Downs street. Miss Marjorie was taken to the camp a little girl, with scarcely a chance for her life, and several times afterward her recovery was despaired of. Now, however, while not what one would call robust, Miss Marjorie is considered quite sufficiently recovered to leave the hospital with safety. It would seem that this case alone is more than sufficient reason for the most up to date operation and maintenance of the hospital. While Miss Marjorie will be much missed at the hospital, all rejoice at her good fortune in being well enough to leave for such a home as means much to any young girl. The past month the following gifts have been received at the hospital: Ice cream for all, from Mrs. William Dedrick; cut flowers from the Rev. Mr. Wemple and family of Saugerties; old linen from the Circles of Mercy; magazines from the Sunday school of the Church of the Comforter. There is a permanent need of old linen or muslin or cheese cloth, and at present the hospital is also in need of bed linen and towel.

Expert Advice For the Automobile Owner

Queries and Replies Covering Matters of Importance to the Man Who Runs a Car

I am building a car into a roadster and would like to know what material to use for a cowl and what thickness or gauge. Can you give me some information on this subject?

You could use either steel or aluminum for this. The sheet steel used by body makers runs anywhere from 18 to 22 gauge.

Would there be any objection to using denatured alcohol undiluted in the radiator? When alcohol and water are used the mixture is a dead loss after the need is past. If all alcohol could be used, then after the danger of freezing was over it could be drained off and used for other purposes or saved and used again. This being the case, would it not be more economical than using solution of alcohol and water? Would the loss from evaporation be enough to offset the saving?

It is evident that you have given too little thought to evaporation in this connection. In the first place, you could not get the desired cooling effect from the use of denatured alcohol alone. The boiling point of denatured alcohol is 173 degrees F., while that of water is 212 F., although either gives off vapor considerably before these degrees of temperature are reached. Water begins to give off vapor at about 150 degrees, while alcohol begins to vaporize shortly after the 100 degree mark is passed. To give you some idea of how much greater extent alcohol evaporates under the ordinary heat generated by the motor than does water it may be said that the ratio as between alcohol and water is approximately ten to one.

Some engines stop almost immediately after the switch is cut off, while other engines seem to lose their momentum gradually. Why is this?

When the switch is cut off on an engine it is merely a matter of bringing to rest the moving parts which are no longer propelled by the explosion of the gases in the combustion chamber. Only one influence is probably great enough to be considered as the opposing factor to the movement of the motor, and this is the internal friction. When this has exerted its influence to such an extent that the motor is unable to turn itself over against the compression of the cylinders it will come to rest. The compression is not an opposing factor unless the momentum is sufficient to carry the motor over top center, because when it is carried over top center the expansion of the compressed air gives up practically all the power which was utilized in compressing it. If the compression were not before, the engine will be unable to turn itself over the dead point. With these considerations it will be easily seen that a motor with tight bearings, tight piston rings and high compression will come to rest much quicker than one which has the opposite conditions.

Has a long stroke motor any advantages over a short stroke motor?

Yes. The gas after ignition has greater chance to give up its energy to the piston. A greater volume of gas may be got into the cylinder without increasing the bore. This means more power for the same piston speed.

Will you please tell me the best way to put kerosene into the cylinders for removing carbon without removing the spark plugs?

The only way you can pour kerosene into the cylinders is through some opening, and the only openings provided in the ordinary motor besides pet cocks are those occupied by spark plugs and valve plugs. If you do not want to remove these, then you will have to feed the oil through the air intake of the carburetor while the engine is running.

The coal oil gives best results if poured into the cylinders when the engine is hot and allowed to remain in the motor for at least ten hours. About one-half a tumblerful should be poured into each cylinder.

Is there any way of determining what gear ratio on final drive would prove most satisfactory?

The gear ratio is determined after the motor characteristics are ascertained. Suppose, for example, that the maximum power of the motor is developed at 1,500 revolutions per minute and it is desired to give the car a maximum speed of fifty miles per hour. A reduction is used which will cause the car to show fifty miles per hour when the motor is turning over at 1,500 revolutions per minute. The most satisfactory ratio depends upon your motor and how you wish the car to perform.

Can you tell me of a good compound that will clean out the rust, scum and other foreign matter that accumulates in the radiator and the cooling system of a car?

Dissolve a half pound of lye in about five gallons of water. Strain this solution and pour into the radiator and cooling system. When this is done allow the engine to run about twenty minutes, which is enough time for the solution to do its work. It should then be drained off. The cooling system should then be washed out several times with clean water.

For Parents to Remember.

Every man who has ever been a child should remember what he was when a child, what he loved, and how much he understood, and what he did, and should remember that his child is just the same sort of a child.—Exchange.

Will you please explain fully the method of fitting and lapping in new piston rings?

Place the cylinders on the bench and apply some ground glass and oil to the interior. The ground glass should be very fine. Then place the piston in the cylinder and work it in and out until the rings are well polished and fit tight. Lapping is an operation which requires an experienced man. Furthermore, it is advisable to use an old cylinder wherever possible, as there is danger of wearing the new cylinder.

I have trouble in starting my car when warm. I have always to spin it. It starts readily if thrown into high when rolling down a grade. What causes this difficulty?

The fact that you have no trouble in starting the motor when cold would indicate immediately that the trouble is not in the ignition system. If you will try a slightly richer mixture on the carburetor it may relieve the trouble. Another possible cause is that the valves may be adjusted too closely, so that when cold they close, but when warm there is an air leak that dilutes the mixture. Carbon trouble also acts this way at times, and if the motor has not been cleaned out lately it is suggested that the carbon be removed. Another possible feature which does not come under the head of ignition is that the dry batteries may be weak.

There is a peculiar grinding noise in the transmission of my car. It is noticeable only when running on high speed and at a rate of from about fifteen to twenty-five miles per hour. Can you advise me as to what the trouble might be?

If the gears give a steady hum when the car is operated in high, there may be nothing wrong with the gears. A steady hum from the rear axle is emitted by nearly all makes of cars. However, if there are stresses at intervals in the sound the gears may be out of round. This is another way of saying that either the gears are not running true or the gears themselves are out of shape. Such a condition may be caused by improper initial, but more usually by tampering with the bevel adjustments or by the gears being allowed to operate in oil containing small particles of metal. There may be one or more teeth with high spots. It is surprising what damage dirt can do to rear axle gears. A small particle of dirt on one of the teeth may cause the gears to give an unsteady sound like that caused by gears which themselves are running out of alignment. The thrust bearings may be worn. It is advised that you have the gears removed and trued up in the shop, for it is almost impossible to detect the cause of an out of round when the gears are in the casing. If you do not wish to go to this trouble, try clean lubricant and before placing it into the case wash the case thoroughly and give the gears a good cleaning, also using kerosene freely in both instances.

My car begins to lag when about halfway up a hill. Does the slanting position of the car interfere with a proper supply of gasoline to the carburetor?

It is not likely that your trouble is due to the position of the tank, but it is probably caused by dirt in the feed pipe. The dirt does not prevent the flow entirely, but reduces it so that not enough gasoline is supplied to the float chamber to satisfy the extra demand put upon the car when it is climbing a hill. Disconnect the feed pipe at the carburetor and note whether the flow is free; if not, remove the pipe and clean it with a wire. If the trouble still persists, adjust the carburetor to give a richer mixture.

The gasoline flow, due to the low position of the tank, should not be affected except on a steep hill. If you feel, however, that the flow is not sufficient you might install a tank holding about a pint directly in front and slightly above the carburetor. This tank is merely connected in the line, has no valves and is only a reservoir, but with sufficient capacity to carry the longest hills, even though the supply of fuel were cut off.

Can a vibrator be converted to a non-vibrator coil for use with a low tension magneto?

A vibrator coil could be used as a nonvibrator coil by removing the vibrator mechanism entirely and taking the primary and secondary terminals and attaching them to their proper places. Another way would be to short circuit the vibrator terminals. The coil then virtually becomes one of the nonvibrator type. This practice is not recommended, and in connection with a low tension magneto it might result in considerable trouble. There would be little gained, as the magneto already has an interrupter and is designed for use with a nonvibrating coil.

What is your opinion of a transmission service brake?

As a general proposition such a brake is considered very efficient. In designing the parts of the cars, when a transmission brake is to be used, the extra strain that this imposes must, of course, be taken into consideration.

CHANDLER SIX $1395

This Great Car Leads All Sixes Because of Its Marvelous Motor

THOUSANDS of men and women who would pay hundreds of dollars more for an automobile, if paying more would get them more, choose the Chandler. They are not seekers after a low price. They desire the best six-cylinder motor regardless of price. They desire a Six because time has shown that a six-cylinder motor, correctly designed, gives all the power and all the flexibility of power that any motor can give; that such a motor has the life and snap and "go" they desire; that such a motor is genuinely economical in cost of operation.

So these devotees of the Six choose the Chandler, because through four years of intelligent, conscientious, manufacturing effort, and without radical or experimental changes of design, the Chandler motor has been developed to a point approximating perfection.

Chandler Low Price is Important, Too

While with so many the question of price is of secondary consideration, still Chandler leads in price today quite as distinctly as it has always led.

In the face of advanced cost of all materials and labor, the Chandler price is but $100 higher than two years ago. And the car is finer than then. Not a feature has been cut out of it. Much has been added.

AND OTHER CARS IN THE CHANDLER FIELD HAVE ADVANCED AS MUCH AS THREE HUNDRED DOLLARS THE PAST YEAR, EITHER BECAUSE OF NECESSITY OR OPPORTUNITY.

The Chandler Company has not been willing to take advantage of a situation which would have permitted price inflation.

And this year we shall probably build and sell more cars than any other manufacturer building a car of even similar quality.

Wide Choice of Beautiful Bodies

You who demand such a motor as the Chandler demand grace of body design, also, and richness of finish. Chandler offers you five beautiful types of body, each mounted on the one standard Chandler chassis.

NEWBURGH SHOWS AROUSE COMMENT

St. John's Church Sends Letter to

The Freeman on the Nature of Attractions to be Offered at Proposed

Cohen Theatre on Wall Street.

To the Editor of The Freeman.

My Dear Sir:

It is learned that a very considerable number of the readers of The Freeman have been much interested in the controversy now taking place in Newburgh as to the censorship of the theatres of that place, attention to which has recently been drawn in the columns of this paper.

Under ordinary circumstances such a controversy would naturally be interesting in a community where the most amicable relations obtain between all of the theatre managers and the theatre approval committee of the local Federation of Women's Clubs, because this committee has found the Kingston managers not only willing but glad to conduct their places of entertainment along decent and proper lines, especially for the young people of the community.

There is added to this interest, the still graver matter of whether or no our churches shall be protected by an ordinance prohibiting the granting of a license to any theatre or play house, etc., within 200 feet of a church, the decision regarding which should occur at the meeting of the common council next Tuesday evening. Those who have been interested in this civic and church problem in this community have also been interested in the specific case of the character of the theatre which it is proposed to erect adjoining St. John's Church.

It will be recalled that when this matter of the Cohen theatre came up last summer, Mr. Cohen made a public statement in the newspapers of Kingston to the effect that only the cleanest and most desirable of performances should be booked at the proposed theatre. At the same time, not in the same article—it was also stated that one of the advantages of the new theatre company was that by operating a chain of theatres including Newburgh and Poughkeepsie, Kingston would be treated to larger and much more desirable shows. This statement led some of the public spirited men and women of Kingston to take note of the performances occurring in the Cohen theatres in Newburgh and Poughkeepsie, and they do not hesitate to say, that judging from the advertisements, illustrated and running in the newspapers of both cities, Kingston has never in its entire history been visited by any such burlesque performances as have appeared in those cities. Within the past month both of the above mentioned cities have had three day stands of "Roseland Maids," and "Hot Dog," or "What Does the Public Want?" showing cuts of the performers, such as would arouse any community interested in the welfare of its young or older people, to objections.

No present Kingston theatre manager would think of booking such a production, yet, had the proposed theatre next to St. John's Church, been completed this fall or early winter it would doubtless have been included in the "chain." Little wonder that the people of our churches and other organizations which are trying to make our city attractive to the best sort of people and who are trying to uplift and uphold our present population, particularly among our young people, are protesting so vigorously against licensing theatres within 200 feet of any church or school.

Trusting that you will be able to spare space in the columns of The Freeman for the above communication, and thanking you in advance for such favor, we are,

THE VESTRY ST. JOHN'S CHURCH, E. N. SNOW, Clerk.

SUNDAY SCHOOL ADOPT RESOLUTION

St. James M. E. Sunday school has adopted the following minute on the death of Mrs. Dimmick, at a meeting held in the church parlors on Thursday evening:

In the recent death of Mrs. Mary Dimmick the Sunday school of St. James Church, Kingston, N. Y., has sustained a great loss. Nearly all her life she was happily associated with our school, either as pupil, teacher or lady superintendent, and always she displayed her deep love and loyalty for it.

For more than a score of years she was lady superintendent, filling that important office with the utmost graciousness, displaying rare tact and fidelity.

While as a school we shall miss her sorely, yet we are sure that the memory of her life will be an enduring and inspiring influence among us.

We take this opportunity for recording our deep appreciation of her life and work—her works do follow her.—Advertisement.

CANDY SALE FOR HIGH SCHOOL FUND

The members of the junior class of the high school held their first candy sale today at the store of Rose-Gorman-Rose on North Front street and all during the day did a land office business. The outlook at noon was rather uncertain, although the sale was scheduled to be continued all day, it looked at noon as if the entire supply of candy would be sold out before night.

The idea of holding the candy sale was devised by the class to help defray expenses of their trip to Washington. The class of 1918 will make the trip to the capital and one-half of the expense will be born by the individual members of the class and the remaining half will be met by the proceeds of sales and entertainments which are to be held by the students. The candy which was on sale today was donated to the class by the Rotary Club and all during the day the members in charge were kept busy supplying the wants of the shoppers who thronged the big department store.

Vedder Sale February 10.

The soda water fixtures of Irving Vedder a former dealer in Kingston, which were levied on by Sheriff Shultis on Friday morning, will be sold at the storage barns of William Hogan on Wall street on Saturday morning, February 10, at 10 o'clock.

Dance at Ulster Park.

A dance will be held in Od Fellows' Hall at Ulster Park on Wednesday evening, February 7. The music will be furnished by McLean's orchestra.

HEAVEN ALL ABOUT US SAYS PEACOCK

Don't Have to Die First to Enjoy Heaven, It's All Around Us Says Evangelist—Speakers on Hell Tonight—1366 Have Hit Trail.

Evangelist L. K. Peacock impressed upon his audience Friday evening at the Delaware Avenue Tabernacle that it was not necessary to die first to enjoy heaven, but that it was all around them if they would but enter in and enjoy the blessings God has showered upon them. At the close of the service 29 accepted the invitation to come forward and consecrate themselves to God. This makes a total of 1,366 who have hit the trail since the campaign started.

The evangelist took as his text Friday evening John 14:2 "In My Father's House are Many Mansions; if I Were Not so, I Would Have Told You; for I Go to Prepare a Place for You." This chapter records Christ's farewell address to his disciples. The time had come when he had to leave them and return to his home in heaven. The disciples were troubled, they were to part with their friend; one who done all in his power to prepare them for the kingdom of God. This chapter records the tenderest farewell the world has ever heard. It carries with it the assurance that every follower of Christ shall have a place set aside for them in heaven if they but obey God's laws and lead a pure, clean life.

Heaven Everywhere.

The evangelist impressed the fact that heaven is everywhere if we but only enter in and enjoy the blessing that God has showered upon us. People are enjoying heaven now; yes, and people are suffering all the torments of hell now.

We Have Assurance.

We have the assurance that there is a life hereafter; that there is a heaven for the people of God. This is proved through the life Christ led upon the earth, and by the promises in God's Word. He said he believed that our loved ones who have gone before can look down upon us, and when we stray from the narrow path of righteousness we hurt not only ourselves, but them. Not only the ones in the world beyond see us, but when we die the evangelist believed that we would be able to recognize loved ones when we meet them in the world beyond the grave.

No Sorrow There.

In heaven we will be all one big family; God's family. There will be no wedding marches, no funeral marches, no sorrow, no tears there, but we will have spiritual bodies and minds according to God's word. Heaven is a spiritual world, not a material one. The great trouble with many of us we look too much upon heaven as we do of earth.

Living for Eternity.

We are not living for time, but eternity. Are you preparing to meet your loved ones in the world beyond? Will you answer when the roll is called up yonder? Cleanse your life of anything that will prevent you from entering into the joys of your Lord.

Speaks on Hell.

This evening at the tabernacle a prayer service will be held from 7 to 7:30 o'clock when the song service will follow and the evangelist will speak on hell. This is a service for every person.

Sunday Services.

There will be three services on Sunday. At the morning service he will speak on "The Resurrection," in the afternoon on "The Judgment" and in the evening on "The Prodigal Son." These services are for every person.

No Services Monday.

There will be no services of any kind on Monday at the tabernacle but services will be resumed on Tuesday afternoon.

The Unpardonable Sin.

Tuesday evening the evangelist will speak on "The Unpardonable Sin."

Went Off Too Soon.

Friday evening while the evangelist was speaking on heaven one of the fire extinguishers became dislodged and fell to the sidewalk floor and began to sputter and shoot off its contents with a hiss. People sitting nearby leaped to their feet in alarm until they saw what the trouble was and several men carried the extinguisher outside. "It went off too soon. It should have waited until Saturday night when I speak on hell," remarked the evangelist, and the audience with a hearty laugh settled back in their seats while the evangelist took up the thread of his discourse where it had been broken off by the occurrence.

Optimistic Thought.

Laughter is spontaneous; tears are squeezed out.

The Same Gold.

A new process for melting old gold rings and other articles and re-making them into band or wedding rings has been installed by C. V. L. Pitts & Son, the Wall street jewelers, with successful results. Broad band rings frequently are not worn because of their size, but by the new process they are melted and re-made into wedding or band rings in the presence of the customer, who is thus assured that the gold that is furnished—to which sentiment often clings—is the same gold that is returned to him later.

Will Admitted to Bail.

Will was arrested in the morning on a charge of grand larceny in the first degree by Sheriff Shults. Late in the afternoon he was admitted to bail by Judge Jenkins in the sum of $2,000, his bondsman being Louis Walker, who lives on the Plank road.

The Unlaid Eggs

The grain-fed hen usually carries a number of unlaid eggs—yolks which she cannot complete into eggs and lay, because her feed lacks the necessary white-forming nutrients. (That's why egg-yolks are found in a hen, when it is dressed.) Many of these yolks of unfinished eggs are finally absorbed back into the hen's system.

Missouri Experiment Station tests showed that 100 lbs. of wheat, corn, oats, barley and kafir corn make (above bodily maintenance) an average of 224 yolks and only 134 whites. Based on data from the same experiments.

Purina formulas produce, (above bodily maintenance) as follows:

Purina Scratch Feed 247.49 yolks 142.11 whites
Purina Chicken Chowder 182.05 " 282.55 "
Combined Ration 429.54 yolks 424.66 whites

These feeds, used in combination, form the most perfectly balanced and economical egg producer you can buy. Purina Chicken Chowder is the egg-completing ration containing exactly the right feed elements to make the necessary whites. That's why we can positively guarantee

on Purina Chicken Chowder if fed with Purina Scratch Feed as directed. You take no risk. Write for further information and for our

JURY TOOK MANY BALLOTS ON CASE

A number of ballots were taken by the jurors who tried Joe Weber for murder, before they finally reached a verdict of manslaughter in the second degree. During most of the ballots, eight jurors voted for manslaughter in the first degree and four voted for manslaughter in the second degree.

The jurors based their verdict on the facts as they believed them to exist, disregarding the testimony of Mrs. Chambers, who testified that from a distance of 140 feet she had seen Blumendorf go through his yard carrying a stone with which he struck Weber, and also disregarding the testimony of Weber.

The jury did not believe that Weber had any grudge against Blumendorf, and that if his intention had been to kill him—constituting murder in the first degree—he would not have fired first at the woman who was sitting on the porch. His firing at them was another matter.

Their reason for disbelieving Mrs. Chambers was that most of them from experience concluded that it was impossible for a person standing at an elevation nine feet above another level to look down, under the branches of trees, through a wagon top which stood in Weber's yard, and through a vine-covered fence and to see what a man carried in his hand when the back of his hand was toward her.

The jury did consider that the trouble between the Webers and Blumendorfs was largely a race feud, but in their deliberations they did not allow, they say, the question of race to influence them in the slightest degree, and to them as jurors the fact that Weber was a white man and Blumendorf was a negro carried no weight whatever. While the feud was between the two families, and practically between some of the white families and the black family of neighborhood, they failed to see that Weber carried any feeling against Charley Blumendorf sufficient for him to determine to kill "him without premeditation, so they eliminated murder in the second degree from their consideration.

As between the two degrees of manslaughter, which is killing in the heat of passion, to which Judge Jenkins in his charge referred several times, the jurors who favored a verdict of manslaughter in the second degree pointed out that the charge of the judge did not state whether a gun was a dangerous weapon, in the eyes of the law, and this was the determining factor in reaching a verdict of manslaughter in the second degree.

An innovation during the trial was the receipt of letters by the jurors, Judge Jenkins acting as Uncle Sam in the distribution and opening of letters, which he read in the presence of each juror who received letters before handing the letters to the jurors. At various times during prolonged murder trials, letters for jurors either have been handed to them unopened, without knowledge of what their contents might be, or have been held for them until the end of the trial.

District Attorney Traver today expressed himself as satisfied with the verdict. He believed that Weber had had a fair trial and the district attorney had no complaint under all the circumstances. The case had several angles and the interpretation of which The People had placed on it was an interpretation which was placed after much conscientious deliberation and consideration of all the facts, but it was for the jury to determine what the verdict should be. The fairness which characterized the trial had been carried out to the end by the charge of the court. Throughout the entire case there had been no unnecessary delay, and the end that the scales of justice as nearly as possible should balance.

PATIENT GRADUATED FROM T.B. HOSPITAL

Perhaps one of the most interesting bits of news which has come from the Tuberculosis Hospital in a long time is that Miss Marjorie Davis, the first patient of the original tuberculosis camp when it was opened in 1908, has left the hospital to make her home with her aunt, Mrs. Higgins, of Downs street.

Miss Marjorie was taken to the camp a little girl, with scarcely a chance for her life, and several times afterward her recovery was despaired of. Now, however, while not what one would call robust, Miss Marjorie is considered quite sufficiently recovered to leave the hospital with safety. It would seem that this case alone is more than sufficient reason for the move up to date operation for the maintenance of the hospital. While Miss Marjorie will be much missed at the hospital, all rejoice at her good fortune in being well enough to leave for such a home as means much to any young girl. The past month the following gifts have been received at the hospital: Ice cream for all, from Mrs. William Dedrick; cut flowers from the Rev. Mr. Wemple and family of Saugerties; old linen from the Circles of Mercy; magazines from the Sunday school of the Church of the Comforter. There is a permanent need of old linen or muslin or cheese cloth, and at present the hospital is also in need of bed linen and towels.

Cranshaw, assisted by Dr. Walter D. Hasbrouck, city physician.

CATTLE BREEDERS ENJOYED BANQUET

That the popularity of Holstein-Friesian cattle is spreading rapidly among fanciers, breeders and farmers was evidenced conclusively Thursday by the enthusiasm of the 100 and more men and women, members of the Eastern New York Holstein-Friesian Breeders' Association and their guests, gathered in the Pompeian Room of The Morgan House, Poughkeepsie, for their annual dinner.

A. L. Brockway, of Syracuse, chairman of the finance committee of the Holstein-Friesian Association of America, spoke of the value of the tuberculin in securing healthy cows both for dairy and breeding purposes; Onadwick Gerow, of Laconia, editor of the Holstein-Friesian Journal, told of the efforts of the publication to serve the Holstein cause and remarked the increased popularity of the breed, and Dr. J. L. Devine, formerly chief veterinarian of the state department of agriculture, spoke of the tuberculin test and discussed other problems which perplex the breeder. Each address was most interesting and beneficial.

HEAVEN ALL ABOUT US SAYS PEACOCK

Don't Have to Die First to Enjoy Heaven, It's All Around Us Says Evangelist—Speakers on Hell Tonight—1366 Have Hit Trail.

Evangelist L. K. Peacock impressed upon his audience Friday evening at the Delaware Avenue Tabernacle that it was not necessary to die first to enjoy heaven, but that it was all around them if they would but enter in and enjoy the blessings God has showered upon them. At the close of the service 29 accepted the invitation to come forward and consecrate themselves to God. This makes a total of 1,366 who have hit the trail since the campaign started.

The evangelist took as his text, Friday evening John 14:2 "In My Father's House are Many Mansions: if I Were Not So, I Would Have Told You, for I Go to Prepare a Place for You." This chapter records Christ's farewell address to his disciples. The time had come when he had to leave them and return to his home in heaven. The disciples were troubled, they were to part with their friend, one who done all in his power to prepare them for the kingdom of God. This chapter records the tenderest farewell the world has ever heard. It carries with it the assurance that every follower of Christ shall have a place set aside for them in heaven if they but obey God's laws and had a pure, clean life.

Heaven lives where.

The evangelist impressed the fact that heaven is everywhere if we but only enter in and enjoy the blessing that God has showered upon us. People are enjoying heaven now; yet, and people are suffering all the torments of hell now.

We Have Assurance.
We have the assurance that there is a life hereafter; that there is a heaven for the people of God. This is proved through the life Christ lived upon the earth, and by the promises in God's Word. He said he believed that our loved ones who have gone before can look down upon us, and when we stray from the narrow path of righteousness we have not only ourselves, but them. Not only the ones in the world beyond see us, but when we die the evangelist believed that we would be able to recognize loved ones when we meet them in the world beyond the grave.

No Sorrow There.
In heaven we will be all one big family; God's family. There will be no wedding marches, no funeral marches, no sorrow, no tears there, but we will have spiritual bodies and minds according to God's word. Heaven is a spiritual world, not a material one. The great trouble with many of us we look too much upon heaven as we do of earth.

Living for Eternity.
We are not living for time, but eternity. Are you preparing to meet your loved ones in the world beyond? Will you answer when the roll is called up yonder? Cleanse your life of anything that will prevent you from entering into the joy of your Lord.

Speaks on Hell.
This evening at the tabernacle a prayer service will be held from 7 to 7:30 o'clock when the song service will follow and the evangelist will speak on hell. This is a service for every person.

Sunday Services.
There will be three services on Sunday. At the morning service he will speak on "The Resurrection," in the afternoon on "The Judgment," and in the evening on "The Prodigal Son." These services are for every person.

No Services Monday.
There will be no services of any kind on Monday at the tabernacle but services will be resumed on Tuesday afternoon.

The Unpardonable Sin.
Tuesday evening the evangelist will speak on "The Unpardonable Sin."

Went Off Too Soon.
Friday evening while the evangelist was speaking on heaven one of the extinguishers became dislodged and fell to the second floor and began to sputter and shoot off its contents with a hiss. People sitting nearby leaped to their feet in alarm until they saw what the trouble was and several men carried the extinguisher outside.

"It went off too soon, it should have waited until Saturday night when I speak on hell," remarked the evangelist, and the audience with a hearty laugh settled back in their seats while the evangelist took up the thread of his discourse where it had been broken off by the occurrence.

Optimistic Thought.
Laughter is spontaneous; tears are squeezed out.

The Same Gold.
A new process for melting old gold rings and other articles and making them into band or wedding rings has been installed by C. V. L. Pitts & Son, the Wall street jewelers, with successful results. Broad hand rings frequently are not worn because of their size, but by the new process they are melted and re-made into wedding or band rings in the presence of the customer, who is thus assured that the gold that is furnished—to which sentiment often clings—is the same gold that is returned to him later.

Will Admitted to Bail.
Tax Collector Fred Will, who was found to be short some $500 of the town of Ulster school funds back in 1915, was given a hearing before Justice Richard Mooney at Edenville on Friday afternoon when he waived examination and was held for the grand jury. Will was arrested in the morning on a charge of grand larceny in the first degree by Sheriff Stauff. Late in the afternoon he was admitted to bail by Judge Jenkins in the sum of $2,000, his bondsman being Louis Walker, who lives on the Plank road.
